

ON THE MOVE

Whyte joins board

INTIMO Lingerie founding director Sue Whyte has joined the board of the Direct Selling Association of Australia as a non-executive director.

Ms Whyte has spent more than 30 years in the fashion industry including importing, design, manufacturing and licensing a number of internationally recognised brands.

She later developed her own knitwear line before launching Intimo Lingerie in 1995.

Ms Whyte is the only female board member of DSAA, which represents an industry dominated by women (73 per cent).

Devine heads Uniseed

PETER Devine is the new chief executive of Uniseed Management.

Dr Devine joined Uniseed in 2003 and as investment director played a major role in the company's investment activities, including the sourcing, selection and management of investments.

He is a former vice-president of business development at Progen Industries and research, development and commercialisation manager at PanBio.

Outgoing chief executive Gareth Dando is pursuing a new path with Southern Cross Venture Partners.
